THE JEFFERSONIAN

ONLY NEWSPAPER DEVOTED ENTIRELY TO THE INTERESTS OF JEFFERSON COUNTY

Vol. 3, No. 49.

Jeffersonian, Jefferson County, Ky., Thursday, May 26, 1910.

Every Thursday at $1.00 Per Year

12 PER CENT.

Raise is Given Property in Jefferson County.

Action of the State Board of Equalization Classified as Arbitrary—A Clean Sweep.

Courier-Journal: The State Board of Equalization, which held behind closed doors in Frankfort, boosted the assessed valuation of all property in Jefferson county 12 per cent. over the figures of the County Assessor. The raise was a horizontal one as nothing escaped. Five of the eight members of the board sanctioned the increase with their votes after a motion had been made and lost for an increase of only 5 per cent. In round numbers the State Board of Equalization by its action has increased the assessment of all classes of property in Louisville by $22,000,000. As a result the citizens of Jefferson county will have to pay the State $240,000 additional taxes.

There is some talk in Frankfort of a contest of the advance in the courts. The basis for the suit would be the alleged illegality of its action. The Louisville member of the board, and one of the men who defeated the 5 per cent. advance in assessment by voting against such a compromise. It is charged that Waters is no longer qualified to hold a place on the board, as he is no longer an owner of property or a housekeeper.

Those who voted for the 12 per cent. raise, after the motion to make it 5 per cent. had been lost by a tie vote, were Garner, Renshaw, Lewis and Earle. State Auditor James did not vote on this issue, and Mason and Hatchett opposed such an action with their votes. W. R. Bruner, Secretary of State, declared that the arbitrary increase in the assessment was a disgrace. Mr. Mason, a member of the board, declared that in his opinion the board abused its authority. Aside from Jefferson, ninety-three other counties were forced to stand an increase in assessment.

Real estate men and property owners generally are disgusted with the action of the State Board, which they unhesitatingly class as arbitrary and unfair, especially on property in many sections of the city. While no fight is probable from the Real Estate Association as an organization, it is predicted that individual agents will resist payment of the raise on some of the property they represent.

Dan Murphy, of the Fidelity Trust Company, said that the raise is unjust, and that in some cases a boost of 12 per cent will place an illegal assessment on much city property. The relief relied upon, he said, will be that an assessment that brings the taxes above a certain amount is illegal. It is possible that individual property owners will ask for an injunction to prevent the collection of the amount fixed by the board on the ground that it is excessive.

Strawberry Social.
A strawberry social was given by the Morrissey brothers at their home near Okolona Saturday evening, May 21, in honor of their guests from Louisville. Those present were Messrs. Mike Morrissey, of Louisville, James Elmer, of St. Matthews, Chas. Willet, of Louisville, John Toebly, Will Gustis, of Okolona, Herbert Snider, of Smyrna, William Woodrow, of Fern Creek, Louis Moore, of Bardonia, and Mrs. St. Matthews, Wm. Smith, of Louisville, Ed. Winters, John Elmore, of St. Matthews, Emanuel Morrissey, Luba Morrissey, of Smyrna, and Misses Nora Welch, Janie Welch, Francis Welch, Olie Lena Fleischer, Marguerite White, Lilly Smith, and baby, Mrs. Mary Welch, all of Louisville, Mrs. Celia Elmore, of St. Matthews.

CITIZENS LIFE

To Establish Home Office at Anchorage—Site Purchased and Erection of Buildings Will Begin Soon.

A large tract of land in Anchorage, formerly known as the McCorkle place, will be the site of the proposed new home of the Citizens' National Life Insurance Company, recently organized and licensed to do business in the State of Kentucky. The property has just been purchased by the heads of the company for something like $10,000 and plans for a new building will be pushed from now on. It is expected that the new headquarters will be ready for occupancy by September 1. The property secured by the company is contiguous to the Louisville and Nashville railroad and the Louisville and Eastern electric line operating between Louisville and Lagrange. It fronts upon the streets in Anchorage, which connects the stations of these two roads and comprises in all about six acres, six and one half acres of which was secured from the McCorkle interests and two and one half of which were purchased from T. C. Hise.

The new building will cost about $40,000 and will be about three stories in height with a basement. It will be designed by the architect, J. H. Adams, Scovell, Wilson and Dent. The new building will not be effected in any way. McDonald and Dood, architects, have been directed to draw the plans for the structure. By transferring the home offices of the company to Anchorage the company will escape city taxes.

In all likelihood the entire office staff, numbering between seventy-five and one hundred, will live in Anchorage.

DETAILS COMPLETE

For Holding Congressional Primary on June 7—Judge Miller Nominated.

Times: Congressman Swager Sherman and State Senator Hermann D. Newcomb must pick it out for the Democratic nomination to Congress, while Judge Shackelford Miller has declared the nominee to the Court of Appeals, as his candidacy for that position was uncontested before the Fifth District Democratic Apportionment Committee. State Senator Newcomb's name will head the primary ballot on June 7. This was decided by lot. Mr. Newcomb and Mr. Sherman will be the only two applicants for nominations to face the barrier in the primary, as the time for entry ended Friday at noon. The campaign between the two aspirants is on in earnest and will continue likely up to the time of the primary. The Congressional Committee is taking pains to insure the voting of bona fide Democrats only. Each election officer will be furnished with a complete list of registered Democrats living in his district. A subcommittee has been appointed to see to the printing of the ballots and the hiring of a room for the Democratic headquarters on Jefferson street, in which they will be located.

Social by M. W. A.
Jeffersonian Camp, No. 13294, will give a strawberry and ice cream social on the lawn of Mr. J. W. Ogden, on Saturday, June 4, from 3 p. m. to 11 p. m. Good music and speaking will be a feature of the occasion. The proceeds are to be used for the benefit of the lodge, and everybody is cordially invited to attend and help the good cause.

NEWMAN

Elected Fair Secretary by Vote of Five To Four.

Dent's Brother Casts Ballot For Opponent.—Mr. Vreeland Withdraws—Bright Prospects For 1910 Fair.

J. W. Newman was chosen secretary of the Kentucky State Fair Association at a meeting of the board at the office of the secretary in the Paul Jones building in Louisville last Saturday night. Newman succeeds himself. Emory G. Dent was also a candidate. Before the election Hubert Vreeland withdrew from the fight because, he stated, he could not secure the support of James L. Dent, who held the balance of power in the body. Mr. Dent did not vote for his brother, E. G. Dent, but cast the deciding vote which made Mr. Newman secretary of the fair for four years at a salary of $500 a year. Mr. Newman received five votes to the four cast for Mr. Dent.

Mr. Vreeland made the following statement regarding his withdrawal for publication: "I had four members of the board who have stood for me against Newman. Mr. Newman and his friends pledged outright to him. Jas. L. Dent held the balance of power, and I had no claims on him whatever. When I found that I could not secure his vote, at my suggestion, my friends on the board agreed to vote for my personal friend and staunch supporter, Emory G. Dent, of Scottsville. Emory Dent is a brother of James L. Dent, and it was thought that his brother would naturally vote for him. He wanted the place after he found that I was out. I did this in the interest of the fair and in an effort to eliminate a political wrangle at a time when the fair is almost upon us."

In explaining his vote after Mr. Newman had been declared secretary, James L. Dent said: "I did my duty as I saw it. I gave my word to vote for Mr. Newman, and the fact that my brother entered the race after I had made this promise could not alter my duty."

After the vote had been taken, all of the State board members pledged themselves to forget party differences, and put their shoulders to the wheel to make the 1910 State Fair the greatest in the history of Kentucky. The vote on the secretaryship was: Newman, five; Dent, four. Adams, Scovell, Wilson and Dent. For Dent—Foman, Dorsey, Blackburn and Rankin.

The members assigned to the various departments of the State Fair are as follows: M. C. Rankin—Poultry, plants and flowers. M. A. Scovell—Dairy cattle; dogs. M. H. Foman—Swine. G. N. McGraw—Women's Department; machinery. J. L. Dent—Beef cattle. William Adams—Field seed and grain; tobacco. G. N. Wilson—Horses, mules; jacks; sport department.

Fred R. Blackburn—Horticulture; forestry and minerals. L. L. Rankin—Vegetables and melons; sheep and goats.

SEATONVILLE

Farmers Behind But Weeds Doing Fine—Willis Brunley Drops Letter—Ed Willis Letter.

May 23—Weather remains cool, cloudy and wet; farmers are getting behind with their crops, but weeds are doing nicely. A good many had to plant their corn over. We hope to have sunshine here and bye. Several from here attended the funeral of Mr. Willis Brunley at King's church last Friday afternoon. Services were conducted by Mr. J. E. Thornberry of Louisville, to a large audience of sympathetic friends and relatives. He was a very sudden death, having dropped dead while seemingly in perfect health. He leaves a wife, who was Miss Hattie McMahon, youngest daughter of Mr. Pete McMahon, an aged and highly respected citizen of New community, and three little children. His remains were interred in the new cemetery at King's church.

On Saturday afternoon several attended the funeral of Mr. W. O. Weller, a highly respected man of Jeffersonian. We want to extend our sympathy to both sorrowing families.

Mr. Willie Allen closed his work at Cedar Springs for a while at least, and will take up his avocation of work for the summer. He has made not a few, but many, Christian friends in this community who regret to have him leave, but, as he felt best, we wish him success in his new field of labor and hope to have him back again.

Fishing parties seemed all the rage Saturday for young people there being two distinct crowds from Smyrna and Newburg, and all seemed to enjoy the day, but I think they fished very hard. A few went from this neighborhood to Salt river. After attending church at Cedar Springs Misses Stella and Mayme Bridwell entertained at dinner Sunday the following friends: Misses Virgie Stout, Myrtle Johnson, Mollie Bell and Blanche Funk, Ethel Mills, Nina Smyser, of Okolona, Maud and Bennie Miller, Bessie Pound, Messrs. Guy Mills, Roy Farmer, Arch Tinnell, Carl Miller, Harry Casey, Dave Miller, Andrew Stout and Willis McDaniel.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES

Appointed at Meeting of Division Board Last Week—Plans for Building New School.

A meeting of school division No. 3 of Jefferson county was called by Chairman James L. Dent, Jr., on Saturday one day last week and three new trustees were appointed and other work disposed of.

The first order of business was the reading of the resignation of J. H. Miller as trustee of Jeffersonian school and secretary of the board. Mr. Miller having gone to Chicago to reside. A motion was made by Geo. Gracch and seconded by P. L. Baker nominating J. C. Alcock for trustee of the school. The motion was carried and the motion carried. The latter was also appointed secretary.

On account of not having the required number of pupils the past school term Seatonville, Primrose and Brentlinger schools were combined, consequently did not have one trustee. Now, since the 1910 school census has been taken it is found that each school has over forty pupils each, the required number, and, of course, it was necessary to appoint trustees for each of the new districts. Frank Jean was appointed trustee of Seatonville school, No. 31, and Wm. Markwell of Primrose, No. 25, to serve until the regular election in August.

J. H. Bates, trustee of the new school district at Fairmont, reported that the patronage in his district were ready to give the ground, make the foundation and build the school building, if the board would furnish the lumber. A motion was made and carried ordering Mr. Bates to go on with the work of making the foundation and receive bids for the lumber and the construction of the building. The board adjourned to meet on the last Saturday in June, at which time the election of the teachers for the coming school term will be made.

REAL ESTATE

Selling High in County, Writes M. F. Johnson.

Prospect For Fruit Good—High School Need For Jefferson County—A Good News Letter From Fern Creek.

By M. F. Johnson.

Fern Creek, May 24.—The comest has been separated from its tail, they tell us, and they also tell us that it is forming a new tail. There is a pretty good reason in that for us. If adversity overtakes us, don't let us grow disheartened, but to get right along and determine to be something and to something. The Lord helps those who help themselves."

The picnic season is at hand, and Beulah is preparing for its annual picnic at the old grounds, which is always as near the 4th of July as possible. This year it will be held on Saturday, the 2nd, as the 4th falls on Monday and preparations could not be made on Sunday.

The annual meeting of those interested in the Penn Run cemetery was held last night and was very successful affair. The old graveyard in the last few years has been transformed into a thing of beauty.

A number of ladies of the fine fruit crop is better this year than it has been for many years. If our people could only be persuaded to care for their trees and vines in an intelligent way they would find fruit growing as profitable as it was in days gone by.

An old friend, S. C. Fryer (Bud), who is one of the deputies at the jail, has been in an infirmary for a few days, but is getting along nicely and will soon be out again.

To be, or not to be, is the question which is agitating the minds of the people along the line of the Bardonia Pike. That is, will the carline be extended or not? The project seems like the count to have temporarily lost its tail.

Jas McCullough, Jr., is spending several days in St. Louis.

Ennis E. Johnson, who has spent the last twelve months at his old home, has returned to the West and will again engage in concrete work on the Santa Fe Railroad system.

He had just completed the Fern Creek census for the United States. It is rumored that the store formerly known as Sim's Store will soon be re-opened under a new management. At this time it seems unaccountable who will be the owner, as there are rumors and rumors.

The weeds and grass are getting a good start ahead of the farmers hereabouts, due to the continued wet weather.

Real estate in the county seems to be as firm in price as ever. The Wheeler (Media) farm was sold for a price reported to be above $35,000. The old Blair farm was sold at the Courthouse door Monday for $30,000, which was fully twice as much as it was expected to bring.

P. K. Miller, of Jeffersonian, was a guest of J. M. Gilmore Monday.

The graduating class from the public schools this year was exceedingly large, about sixty-five. This calls loudly for the erection of a county high school. No doubt the number will be larger next year and surely it is time for our Board of Education to begin considering this matter. We cannot afford to longer be dependent upon the whim of the Louisville School Board. If we have to pay them eight thousand dollars out of our school fund for the tuition of the few who graduated last year, what may we have to pay in the future for the constantly increasing number of graduates? Besides, we want a different curriculum for our farmer boys and girls. Much attention should be given agriculture to the boys and domestic science for the girls. Prepare the boys and girls for lives of usefulness in the country.

EXAMINATIONS

To Be Held For Appointments to State University.

Mr. E. C. Hoagland Purchases Nice Property—Eighteen Examined Last Friday—Harrod's Creek School Closed.

Harrod's Creek, May 23.—School Superintendent of Schools, Orville J. Stivers, wishes to make known to the youths of Jefferson county, including the city of Louisville, that 72 of their number may be appointed to the State University at Lexington, Kentucky, and all charges for tuition, matriculation fees, room rent, fuel and lights to have all the advantages and privileges of the University. These appointments are not restricted to boys, but girls also may be appointed. The State University ranks among the best in the country, and all deserving young people should avail themselves of this opportunity to secure an education. Other things being equal, preference will be given to those who have passed through public schools and who are not burdened with a fortune. For further information, call upon Mr. Stivers at his office in the court house.

Mr. E. C. Hoagland, of the Prospect Bank, has purchased the beautiful home of Dr. A. M. Morrison, near Prospect, in Oldham county. The price paid is said to have been $7,500. Mr. Hoagland will take possession in a few weeks.

Eighteen young ladies and gentlemen were examined at the office of the County School Superintendent on Friday and Saturday of last week. They were: Mrs. Viola Caldwell, Misses Inez Paswater, Jeffersonville, Ind., Dorothy and Elizabeth Skiles, Phil Mills, Hattie Robinson, Nellie Singleton, Mabel Griffiths, Maud Parry, Ethel Leach, Adah Brooks, Janette Fox, Mary Keeler, Ailie W. Boardman, of W. W. Yates, of Mauckport, Ind., W. A. Yates, of Mauckport, and B. Owen Smith.

The public school (white) at Harrod's Creek closed Friday afternoon, May 20, with a bird day celebration. A sufficient sum of money was realized to purchase a flag for the schoolhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert T. Dick, of St. Matthews, and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Belfort and family spent Sunday with the family of G. S. Dick, at Prospect.

PRESTONIA.

May 23.—Two hundred persons were present at the flag raising at the school here Sunday afternoon. Quite an enjoyable program was presented by the young people. This marks the close of the school taught by Miss Yager, whose work was satisfactory to all. Miss Elsie Kalmy is the only graduate this year.

Mrs. E. A. Low and Miss Nettie Kennedy, of Hikes' Point, and Masters Johnson and John Emory Kennedy were guests of Mrs. W. Gilmore this week.

The protracted meeting is in progress at the Methodist church, Bro. Johnson of Valley Station, is doing the preaching. Miss Marianne Cooper and brothers were guests of Miss Zelma Gilmore the first of the week.

Mrs. Mary Cooper continues quite ill at her home near here.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Yates will be a strawberry festival and dance on the afternoon and evening of June the 1st.

Miss Des Oshore, of Samuels, is a guest of Miss Mattie Ireland. The Modern Woomen of America will have a picnic at Okolona in May, to be held on Saturday, May 28, from 2 to 5 p. m. All are cordially invited.

P. K. Miller, of Jeffersonian, was a guest of J. M. Gilmore Monday.

CHAPTER XXVI.
A PRELUDE.
"Oh! they are just lovely, lovely," gasped Nina and Gladys, as they shook out the folds of the glistening ball dresses which had just been brought from the dressmaker at Havelhurst. Dinner was over, and the three girls had gone to their room to see that everything was in order to wear the ball.
"Oh, yes, they are both very pretty and made after the latest style,"
said Ploy, "but they are not one bit prettier than mamma's old-fashioned wedding dress which I'm to wear,"
and she lifted from the trunk, the cream moire silk.
"Pshaw! Ploy, your dress is not comparing to ours," said Nina,
with a disdainful toss of her head.
"It might have been quite as pretty
if you had had it made over to suit the present style, but you have such queer notions, you must needs leave it just as it is, and it is so absurdly plain."
"I don't care if it is. It has quite as long a train as yours, and it just suits me, for I am quite a plain girl
anyway you take me," said Ploy, shutting the lid of her trunk with a bang. "Now that we have everything arranged to wear to the ball, what shall we do to pass away the rest of the afternoon?"
"Nina and I are going to take a nap," said Gladys, and suiting the action to the word she threw herself
upon the bed.
"Oh dear, I couldn't sleep if I wanted to, and I'm sure I don't want to,"
said Ploy. "So, good-bye. I'm off for a lark."
Going down stairs she hunted the big white sun-bonnet, tied it over her curls and left the house in search of strawberries. She had been strolling about for more than an hour and when crossing a large hayfield she had almost reached the center when suddenly she became aware that she was not the only living object in the field, for a low, angry howl proclaimed that Mr.
Green's bull was somewhere near.
Ploy gave a terrified gasp behind her and saw the bull making straight toward her, with lowered head and tail erect. There were no fences near, but in the center of the field stood a gnarled old apple tree with branches almost sweeping the ground. To this tree Ploy ran and swung herself among the branches;
and none too soon, for the bull was well out of the tree by the time she was well out of reach of his long horn.
"Ah there, stay there," called Ploy, shaking her fist at the bull,
and climbing higher into the tree.
The only answer was a roar of disappointment from the bull.
Ploy amused herself for some time
by breaking twigs from the tree and throwing them down at the angry animal. However, she soon grew tired of this and ceased tantalizing him, thinking that perhaps he would go away presently. But that was far from her intentions, for soon he lay quietly down in the shade to keep guard, eye and ear rolling his eyes
upward to see if she was secure.
Ploy took off her sun-bonnet, tied it to a limb, then settled herself snugly among the branches, determined to make the best of it. She waited patiently for an hour or more, but at last grew tired and impatient. The bull now seemed to be asleep.
"Oh, if I could only get down without attracting his attention, I'd struck it across the field so fast he never would catch me," thought Ploy, beginning to descend with great caution. She reached the lower branches, but went no farther. Her courage failed her, and she climbed back out of danger's way.
"Oh, good heavens, what if that horrid animal should keep me here
all night," thought Ploy. "Then I would miss the ball. If I only had a knife, or a gun I'd soon settle your hash, or settle you for hash," she said in a vindictive whisper, gritting her white teeth and shaking both hats at the unconscious animal. The afternoon was passing away; the sun
had already been behind the hills, and poor Ploy still sat in the apple tree, hoping that something would happen so that she might venture to ground. Her hopes were not in vain. She had climbed to the top of the tree in order to keep a lookout for any one who might chance to come in sight. Her patience was at last rewarded by the sight of a man
coming across the field in her direction. He carried a rifle across his shoulder, while a pretty spotted pointer trotted along ahead of him.
"Oh glory! I'm glad, deliverance is almost here," thought Ploy. "And now for some fun. The man don't see the bull, nor the bull don't see the man, and when they meet what a race there will be. Oh my, but he is handsome," as the young stranger drew nearer. "I wonder if he isn't one of the summer boarders at Rock-dale." Or he came evidently intend-

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS
Program is Outlined—Directors Meet in Louisville and Secretary Kerner
Tells of Plans.
A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Kentucky Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis was held in the Leather Room of the Seelbach Hotel, in Louisville, at which the newly appointed secretary, Mr. Eugene Kerner, presented an interesting program for arousing Kentucky to an active fight against tuberculosis.
Mr. Kerner told of the work being done by some of the states in the east, and stated that Kentucky is the first state in the south that has shown an active interest in stamping out this white plague, which claims over 6,500 lives annually in Kentucky.
Mr. Kerner will go through the state, armed with a camera taking pictures and collecting statistics of conditions as he finds them and will give lectures and exhibits to acquaint the people with what he finds, urging them to form local Anti-Tuberculosis Societies and committees to take up the fight in their respective localities. His headquarters will be at 215 East Walnut street, Louisville.
Dr. Geo. P. Sprague, of Lexington, said that a special committee on tuberculosis had been appointed by the Kentucky State Medical Association which will work in close cooperation with the association.
Dr. S. H. Keller, of Frankfort, said that the State Board of Health is ready to lend the association every aid possible in stamping out this great white plague in Kentucky.
Mrs. Chas. Damm, of Henderson, gave an excellent report of the work done by the Henderson Anti-Tuberculosis Association, illustrating what can be done in a locality that has realized its needs.
A committee was appointed to enlist all fraternal societies in the state to help in this great fight.
The Board of Directors are C. L.
Adler, Louisville; Mrs. Desha Beck-
lridge, Lexington; Dr. S. H. Keller, Frankfort; E. T. Frank, Owensboro;
Mrs. B. L. Ranks, Richmond; August
Ropke, Louisville; J. A. Scott, Frankfort; G. P. Sprague, Lexington; Mrs.

rough light dancing in her bright eyes. "Susan Dolittle, of Kentucky Hills."
Walter Lyon twirled the end of his superb black mustache to hide
the amused smile that played about his lips. "Well then, Miss Dolittle, since you will not do so little as to dance with me, I—"
"Oh, yes, I'll dance with you, Mr.
Lyon, since you have introduced yourself," she interrupted. "That is,
if I get home in time to dress for the ball. I am sure that I will do so at once, for the sun has entirely disappeared. Good-bye, I'm off for home."
"Only an revoir, for we shall meet again tonight, you know, Miss Do-little," said Lyon, again shouldering
his rifle and turning to go.
"Oh, yes, if nothing happens to prevent," answered Ploy who was already some distance away.
She reached the high rail fence that separated Mr. Green's hay field from her father's orchard, and quickly climbing to the top, she stood upright and waved her bonnet to Lyon, who smiled and tipped his hat in a parting salute.
Lyon stood looking after her, until
she had disappeared among the trees, then set out for the village. They parted, and better had it been forever.

Theory That Mice Spread Epidemics of Measles

A theory that mice spread measles in the same way that rats propagate plague has been put forth by Dr. A. P. A. King, of Washington, D. C., in a paper read before the Medical Society of that city. The Medical Record commenting upon it, remarks that the theory is new, and has been hinted at before, but not so very long ago would have been received with incredulity and scorn. Continuing, it says:

"Of late years, however, the role of animals and insects in the dissemination of disease has been so conclusively demonstrated that he would be a bold and ill-advised man who scoffed at any suggestion, wild as it might seem, which endeavored to trace a connection between an animal and infection. Moreover, it should not be forgotten that Dr. King was a pioneer of the theory that there might be a causal relation between mosquitoes and malaria."

"After all, there is nothing inherently improbable in the idea that mice may be the means of conveying measles to the human subject, and it will be interesting to discuss briefly Dr. King's arguments in support of the theory. Numerous cases are on record in which measles appears to have originated from contract with mice. According to Dr. King, during our Civil War it was generally understood that the soldiers in both armies contracted measles by sleeping upon straw."

"In 1862, Dr. J. H. Salisbury, of Newark, O., obtained from wheat straw spores of fungi which, when introduced into the body, produces a disease which appeared to be identical with measles, and which conferred immunity upon those who had been inoculated with these spores."

"Is there any coincidence between an increased prevalence of measles and mouse-plagues? Dr. King attempts to answer this question in the affirmative, and to show that during the three most notable mouse-plagues of recent times measles was also prevalent in one of the localities at the same time. The scenes of the superabundance of mice were, respectively Scotland, Thessaly and Russia during the years from 1892-95. In Scotland in 1893, when the mouse-plague had reached its acme, the number of deaths recorded from measles was greater than for any previous year for which a record was kept."

"The author adduces other evidence presumably in favor of the theory, and while confessing that this for the most part only probable or presumptive, explains how positive evidence might be obtained by experiment."

Frank on the Knee Made Teddy President.

New York, May 20.—If Frank H. Platt, son of the late Senator Theodore C. Platt, had not pinched Theodore Roosevelt on the leg just at the critical moment in a conference of the New York delegation at the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia in 1900, Col. Roosevelt, then Governor of New York, would not have been President of the United States, succeeding Major McKinley.

This interesting bit of unpublished political history is made public for the first time in Senator Platt's autobiography, printed in McClure's Magazine for June.

When Gov. Roosevelt at the solicitation of Dr. Albert Shaw, Frederick W. Hollis and Nicholas Murray Butler, when Senator Platt designates as "Roosevelt's self-cutting finger," decided to decline the Vice Presidential nomination. Frank H. Platt suddenly reminded the Governor of the promise which he had made to Senator Platt.

"My son pinched Roosevelt in the leg and said, 'remember your contract with the Senate.'"

"are the words used by Senator Platt in describing the heretofore unknown incident."

King's Dog Misses Him.

One mourner for King Edward's death is his favorite dog, the rough-haired terrier, Caesar, which was the king's constant companion, going abroad with him as well as on shorter journeys. He is a singularly intelligent animal, and his conduct since the death of his master leaves no doubt in any mind that he realizes perfectly what has happened.

He shared the king's room wherever he was, and now moves about the palace fitfully and restlessly. He has attached himself to a member of the household who, like himself, was constantly with the king, and the sorrow-stricken servant and his grief.

Many stories are told of Caesar. At luncheon one day at Biarritz, when Caesar was receiving his usual bone from the king's hand, a guest at the royal table observed that the dog should be getting familiar with the language of French dogs.

"I am afraid," said the king, "that he gets along very badly with them; in fact, he is anything but a help, to the entente cordiale."—London Cable in New York Times.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

A PARODY.

From a conversation heard between two old "has-beens," who, according to their tales, had been down the pike and up against it, and I witnessed their begging for a drink and the fight.

An investigator of humanity in all form. I am one form but do not know which:

wandered to the city, Tom; I sat upon an old, old log.
In the old cafe where we were wont to brag but none are left to treat me and none were left to show
How the Indian dice were played and we sang Hilo, Hilo.

The pool table is just as green, dear Tom; other sports at play
Were sporting just as we were drinking spirits and a new game for today:
The proprietor is in a motor car, which cost a heap of dough,
Affording us the dope of memory (he cost) just twenty years ago.

The boys are playing a game with shells upon the same old table;
I forget the name just now, Tom, perhaps your memory is liable;
On the self same spot the shells were put just so and so
We bumped a task we couldn't do, our eyes were just twenty years too slow.

The beer is running still with ice all around the glass just as tempting, Tom, but, alas, my pockets are turned outside, dear Tom.
The hammock is broke and gone now where we once shivered and dozed,
And we get "swung" by our sweethearts, pretty girls, just twenty years ago.

The lunch was forked up by the smiling, blood-sucking leech.
Now so high, 'twas once so low we could not reach,
And kneeling down to beg a drink and spread the name you know.
For my change had greatly changed from twenty years ago.

Near by the lunch a singing, we tried to cap a swell.

But he was a wise plan, the way he used the mite, we well observed;
He peeled the bark from your brow in just a flick or so.
And when I awoke my consciousness (I had died) just twenty years ago.

My throat has long been dry, dear Tom, and my eyes are old and weary.
I thought of old Bourbon I loved so well, but, alas, a new bartender:
I visited the police court where they gave six days to show,
Because the judge said you hadn't just twenty backs to grow.

Some are in aisyam, Frankfort, others had to cross the sea;

None of our pals are free, dear Tom, 'tis well with you and me;
But when our time comes, Tom, and we are called to egg,
We will break the same old rod as we did just twenty years ago.

Now, young fellow, there's a moral attached, be sure we don't miss Seeing how we strayed off, aimed, and at last come to this Banish these things from us to-day and aim on out and upward we must ever grow,
Let us strive to be twenty years better than we were just twenty years ago.

Failed in Health
"My mother died six years ago," writes Miss Ruth Ward, of Jerseyville, Ill., "and left me to care for six children. I had never been strong; and this, with the shock of her death, was too much for me.
"I failed in health. I was tired all the time and did not want to go anywhere, nor care for company. I had the headache all the time and such bearing-down pains. "A very dear friend advised me to take Cardui, as it had done her so much good, so I commenced to use it and now I am in good health."

Take CARDUI
The Woman's Tonic
Women's pains are relieved or prevented and women's strength is quickly restored by Cardui, the woman's tonic. You yourself know best if you need it, or not. If you do need it, do not delay, but commence to use it at once. Every day of delay, only lets you slide further down the hill.
Don't wait, then, but begin to take Cardui today, for its use, no matter how prolonged, cannot harm you and will surely do you good.
